Against All Odds

In 1984, Jacques Terzian was aware of the challenges ahead when he founded The Point and launched the Hunters Point Shipyard Artists. After the Navy ceased operations in 1974, a handful of artists and small businesses, Jacques among them, started leasing buildings from the new master tenant, Triple A Shipyard. As artists faced displacement in the city, Jacques recognized the appeal of the shipyard's low-rent neglected buildings. Despite the inherent dangers of industrial decay, a vibrant community emerged.

The Shipyard's fate rapidly shifted in 1986, when the Navy, planning to "home-port" the battleship USS Missouri, did not renew Triple A Shipyard's lease. Threatened by eviction, the artists fought back; their unwavering determination and support from Congresswoman Nancy Pelosi allowed them to survive. Designation as a Superfund site in 1989 marked the start of a prolonged Navy cleanup and new displacement risks. With Pelosi and Mayor Gavin Newsom, interim leases between the Navy and the City were secured in 2008. Building 101 and a new artist building became part of the City's redevelopment plans. However, construction of the building was derailed in 2018, when a Naval contractor was caught falsifying soil samples. Forty years after the community's founding, the artists persevere, committed to raising their old buildings amidst new concerns about rising sea levels and contaminated groundwater. The resilience of the Hunters Point Shipyard Artists endures, underscoring their unwavering dedication to art and community.

40th Anniversary Summer 2024 Exhibits

Shipyard Trust for the Arts is marking the 40th anniversary of the Hunters Point Shipyard Artists by paying tribute to the community that settled here in the 1940s and 50s. Their descendants continue to shape the neighborhood.

Despite facing discrimination in work, housing, healthcare, and education, and grappling with the shipyard's environmental legacy, this African American community's resilience is remarkable. These exhibits celebrate their enduring spirit.

May 30 – June 29

Adonia Middleton
William Rhodes
Charles Unger

Threaded Identities

This exhibit is curated by our Artists in Residence, Middleton, Rhodes, and Unger, showcasing their work alongside that of artists who have inspired them at the Shipyard.

Shown above: Rhonel Roberts, Bass Player

July 18 – August 17

Malik Seneferu

Growing Up in the Shadow of the Shipyard

Curated by Malik Seneferu, this exhibit features artwork by Malik Seneferu and the Kuumba Art Collective, highlighting the experiences of youth residing in Alice Griffith Public Housing.

Shown above: Malik Seneferu, From the Hill and Beyond

September 5 – October 5

Stacey Carter
William Rhodes

African American Shipyard History Quilt Project

This exhibit, a blend of art and history, is the result of a year-long project by Stacey Carter and William Rhodes. It draws on the African American history of the Shipyard, collaborating with community seniors who have ancestral ties to it.

Logistics

Questions? Our Help Desk is located in Bldg 101, Studio 1212

- Parking

The main parking lot is reached via Donahue Street. Limited parking is available at Building 101 and along Galvez Avenue.
- Walking

Walking is the easiest way to travel between all buildings, except ICS.
- Accessibility

All artist buildings are accessible on the first floor, but not the second. See the adjacent map for accessible entrances (101 in front, 104 in back). You should drive between buildings and use the plentiful, designated, reserved parking at each building.
- Restrooms

Building 101 has restrooms throughout the building. The other buildings only have one shared modular restroom near the food area.
- Shipyard History Tours

Meet at the 451 Galvez Ave outdoor seating. Please wait at the sign. Tours convene a short, uphill walk at the overlook. You can drive to the overlook directly at 52 Innes Court. Tickets required; scan QR code.
- Viewing Points

Spectacular views of the shipyard can be enjoyed by stepping outside upstairs doors at end of side hallways in Building 101.
- Islais Creek Studios

These studios are part of our community, and a 5-minute drive from the Shipyard. When leaving, follow the red A-frame signs. See pages 26-27.
